- X-ray MicroCT, Principles & Examples Stuart Stock, Northwestern University
- Imaging mass spectrometry: a tool for visualizing proteomic processes in tissue Shannon Cornett, Vanderbilt University
- Adobe Photoshop Lightroom - Julieanne Kost, Adobe
In this seminar, we will learn the quickest and most streamlined methods for working with a large volume of images. In addition, discover how to make the highest quality image adjustments while taking full advantage Lightrooms non-destructive image-editing environment. See how to create templates and presets for added efficiency when outputting presentations across multiple media including print, web and digital projections.
- Adobe Photoshop CS4 Extended Julieanne Kost, Adobe
Discover the power of Adobe's latest incarnation of Photoshop as Julieanne Kost reveals the robust new features of Adobe Bridge, Camera Raw and Photoshop CS4 Extended. This action-packed session will give you the deluxe tour through new tools, powerful updated features, and product enhancements.
- Vocational Education in Electron Microscopy Michael Kostrna, Madison Area Technical College
- Student Presentations
These are submissions for the MMMS Student Competition Program. A goal of M3S is to support and encourage students in all areas of microscopy and microanalysis. A session at the workshop will be devoted to student presentations 15 minutes in length. Prizes of $300.00, $200.00 and $100.00 will be awarded. Please submit a brief abstract in electronic format (Word or PDF) to Nicholls@uic.edu by 11:59pm Friday, 7th November 2008
